HARPER'S FERRY AND THE SHENANDOAH VALLEY .- "Harper's Ferry has long been celebrated for its rugged and picturesque scenery, for its mild yet invigorating climate, for its magnificent water power, and for its historical associations. The names of Lord Fairfax, of Washington and Jefferson, are successively associated with and add a romantic charm to its early history. It was Washington who at the close of the last century so forcibly pointed out the advantages, and suggested the situation of this beautiful spot, for a national armory where the Government could at its own expense, and under the supervision of experienced officers. manufacture such arms as were necessary for our army. He pointed out also the various uses to which this vast water-power could be put in manufacturing; its value to the people of the surrounding country, if properly developed; the little trouble there would be in control ling it; its freedom from ice in winter and flood in summer-and all with a clearness of foresight seemingly prophetic. In erecting the works necessary to the development of the great waand foundation works, as well as the work shops and other buildings, the Government spared profite of Superintendent of Gas. neither pains nor expense. The substantial character of the works now standing, and which escaped the ravages of war, is such as can be seen nowhere else in this country."

"In addition to the natural beauty of the seenery, and the pure, bracing air of its hills, which seems to give new life and strength to all within its influence, there is good hunting and fishing in the neighborhood, and a rich and fertile country just beyond-in the beautiful valley of the Shenandoah."

"The bridge of the Baltimore and Ohio raildestroyed and rebuilt nine times during the war. A substantial tressle work bridge, of iron, standing on massive granite piers, unique road spanning the Potomac river at this point, iron, standing on massive granite piers, unique the office satisfactorily to all parties.

iron, standing on massive granite piers, unique the office satisfactorily to all parties.

my 7—te W. H. McKNIGHT. in its construction, and forming a beautiful barmony with the surrounding scenery, now stretches across the river, affording ample facilities for railroad trains, wagons, and foot-passengers.' Here, the clear, blue waters of the Shenandoah, rushing down over a deep, rocky bed from the West, mingle with the torpid Potomac, sweeping down in a broad stream from the north. These rivers form a triangle, with the town of Harper's Ferry nestling low down on its point, and steep winding roads leading to Bolivar Heights, just above. Across the Potomac, to the East, are Maryland Heights, rocky and rugged, rising abruptly to the height of fifteen hundred feet, and forming a sort of base wall for the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, which runs along between it and the river .-Loudoun Heights, on the Shenandoah, rising in a rocky pyramid, about eleven hundred feet, form the southern base wall of the triangle, throwing deep shadows over the surface of the river morning and evening. These great natural rock walls, separated by a space a little less than half a mile wide, form the gates of the rich and fertile valley of the Shenandoah, extending for three hundred miles of what was once, and will soon be again, the richest and most productive portion of Virginia. In short, the valley of the Shenandoah has long and deservedly been known as the Garden of Virginia, many of the counties along the river being under quite as high a state of cultivation as counties in the west of England, and in very many respects resembling them. The fine old mansions of the land owners, their out-houses, their broad acres, the freedom and frankness of their manners, their love for thorough-bred stock and out door sports, and their generous hospitality to strangers, all bear a strong resemblance to what one neets with among English country gentlemen. Their manners and style of living were also a good index of what the country was capable of producing.'

A NORTH CAROLINA STRAIGHT DRINK .-Some years since, when they were buildin' the locks on Coal River, I was over thar at Peytona, and I stopped in at Dr. Kellum's who physick ed people in that quarter at that time. Thar was a famine just then, and great sufferio' among men, women, and children, for want of necessaries of life. Leastwise, it was about the same thing. Thar was plenty of meat, an abundance of corn, and no scarcity of chicken; but the rivers were dry, an whiskey ran entirely short. Some prudent people laid in a sufficient stock, but the most had not .--How to bring up a family 'thout red eye was a puzzler, and the suffering was enowmous. Dr. Kellum was in trouble, too; he sympathized with his neighbors, but he had a half-barrel of ninety-five per cent, alcohol in his office, and, as far as he was concerned, he managed to fix up, with sugar an' water, an' gum, an' other, an' sich truck, until he made a purty tair drink. Seein' I was a friend of his, he invited me to sample it. Well, it kinder filled the room with smell, an' jist then a man from the Mud River country came in, on his way to Raleigh Cote House .-He smelt the smell, an says: "I've been nigh two days from home, an' I'm almost starvin.' "Oh," says Kellum, pointing to the cask, "that's it. Help yourself." The chap brightened up, an' he drawed a level tumbler full of the alcohol, an' afore you could say, "Scat, you beast!" down it went. Kellum he turned pale. Says the man, "I'm much obliged to you. That's sarching!" an' he turned an' walked out. Kellum sat as if he'd been shot, an' then jumped up. "That won't do," said he. "That's enough to pizen a crowd. I'll call him back and give him an emetic.' We both went to the door. He wasn't in sight, I run up to the creek, and Kellum, he run down to the road; but it wasn't no use. "I shouldn't wonder," said Kellum, "ef that chap hasn't gone and died somewhar by himself. Thar'll be a corpse found directly, and a krawner's ink which, an' lots of trouble." Well, we set that for about an hour, talking about ash, Ground Salt Cake, Sal. Ammonic, Carb ash, Ground Salt Cake, Sal. Ammonic, Carb Ammonis and Oil of Vitriol, in large quantities for warienters. wonst in walked the chap himself, as peert as ties, for agricultural purposes, on hand and for long way up the river, an' licker's skeerce, an if it's all the same to you, could you spar' me another tumblerful? Its the the most satisfy ingest licker I ever drank."

tain practice, indulged in, a habit me quently loarned from evil companions, or as school, the effects of which are product, even when asicep, and, if not cured, render, marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply immediately.

What a pity that a young man, the hope his country, the pride of his parents, should be snatched from all prespects and enjoyments of life by the consequence of deviating from the path of nature, and indulging in a certain secret habit. Each persons must before contemp. plating MARRIAGE effect that a sound mind and body are the most necessary requisites to promote connubial hap piness. Indeed, without these the journey through life becomes a weary pilgrimage, the prospect hourly darkens to the view, the min1 becomes shadowed with despair and filled with the melancholy reflection that the happiness and another becomes blighted with your own. DISEASES OF IMPRODENCE When the misgarded and imprudent votacy of pleasure finds that he has imbibed the seeds of this painful disease it too often happens that an ill-timed sense of chame or dread of discov ery deters him from applying to those, we from education and respectability, can alon befriend him, delaying till the constitutional symptoms of this horrid disease make their approximation and a symptom of the second second constitution of the second se pearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased pearance, such as ulcerated sore throat, diseased nose, nocturnal pains in the head and himber dimness of sight, deafness, nodes on the shin bones and arms, blotches on the head, face and extremities, progressing with frightful rapidity till at last the palate of the mouth or the constitution of the nose fall in, and the victim of this awind disease becomes a horrid object of commissers the palate of the mouth or the constitution till death puts a period to his dreadful so tion, till death puts a period to his dreadful suf ferings, by sending him to "that Undiscovered
